

I'm an Earth Scientist

To help promote under-represented groups in Earth Science we want Earth Scientists in academia, industry and other related jobs to submit an image of themselves holding a sign that reads 'I'm an Earth Scientist' in their work/study environment - be that in an office, library, quarry, laboratory, classroom, or up a mountain!

We will collate these images into a video aiming to show the diversity of Earth Scientists working today, with a focus on promoting underrepresented groups.

How to enter:

- To be considered images must be landscape and include a sign that reads 'I'm an Earth Scientist'. This does not have to be in English if this is not your first language.
- You can use the sign template, downloadable from our website, or design your own.
- Please make sure the sign is in the centre of the image (or as close as possible) as per the template below.

- More than one person can be in the image. You can submit with a colleague or with your whole team, but please ensure that you have everyone's permission to share their image.
- Images should be sent to education@geolsoc.org.uk with the completed application form. On submission of your image you must include your first name(s), location of where you work and your sector of work (e.g. 'hydrogeology' NOT 'senior hydrogeologist at Ground Water UK'). The names and contact information of any other persons included in the photograph must also be included on the form.
- If you would like your Twitter and/or Instagram handle included, please remember to let us know when submitting your image.

Eligibility

- Entries are welcome from any country.
- You do not have to have a paid job to submit an entry - students studying Earth science related disciplines are encouraged to participate.

I'm an Earth Scientist

- You must be over the age of 18 to submit an entry
- Entrants must be the owner and/or copyright holder of the submitted image

Terms and Conditions

- All images will be screened by the Geological Society. Submission of an image does not guarantee it will be included in the final video.
- If selected, your image will be used on the Geological Society website and shared on social media, including but not limited to Facebook, YouTube, LinkedIn, Instagram, and Twitter. Please make sure you are comfortable the T&Cs from these regarding publicly shared photos before you submit an image.
- By submitting your image, you are granting the Geological Society of London a non-exclusive license to use your image in the I'm an Earth Scientist promotion, and other outreach and educational programmes with a similar purpose. Your image will not be used for commercial activities.
- All individuals pictured must agree to the submission, and to these terms and conditions. By submitting a photo, the lead submitter affirms that they have obtained this agreement.
- The data obtained from entrants will be kept secure and only used only in association with the I'm an Earth Scientist promotion unless the entrant has opted in to further communications.
- The Geological Society of London does not accept responsibility or liability for entries lost or delayed by technical issues or other causes outside its control.